TASK FORCE PROPOSAL ACCEPTED

New calendar and curriculum to begin in September

The faculty of Juniata College gave overwhelming approval, recently, to the Task Force proposals for a new educational program designed to meet the needs of the 70's.

Following two years of intensive research and study, Juniata's 90 member faculty voted to accept the revised curriculum and calendar which offers students substantially increased freedom to pursue an education responsive to their contemporary life and responsibilities.

The new curriculum permits each undergraduate to plan and follow an academic program of his own choosing with units of study replacing credits for hours spent in the classroom.

A new calendar constructed on three ten-week terms will replace the current semester system. The academic units may run five, ten, fifteen or twenty weeks within the framework of the calendar. This is expected to provide great flexibility for each student's program of study.

The nine-member Task Force was composed of seven faculty and two students with two alumni representatives assisting in the preparation of the recommendations.

President John N. Stauffer complimented the group during Spring Convocation. "The faculty," he said, "has designed an educational program which fits the needs of today's youth. I am convinced that new alternative paths to personal and intellectual development are necessary if our young people are to meet the challenge of their time."

He also declared that "in the context of the revitalized liberal arts program, Juniata will continue to pursue its traditional pattern of excellence in helping men and women to prepare for advanced study in graduate and professional schools. Advancement of the total quality of the educational experience is the purpose of the newly created program."

Dr. Wilfred G. Norris, who is acting dean of academic affairs, pointed to the importance of the new program in preparation for the visit next year by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

He also commented that the "principal asset of a college like Juniata is its potential for helpful faculty-student contacts. The new curriculum will make these essential contacts more frequent and more effective."

The new program starts in September, 1971, according to the dean, but will be limited to the incoming freshman class. The sophomores, juniors and seniors will continue for at least one more year on the present calendar and curriculum.

The faculty-student Task Force was established in the summer of 1969 after Dr. Stauffer, at the conclusion of his first year as president, called for a complete review of Juniata's program and for recommendations aimed at educational reform. The seven faculty members and two students began their work by considering the philosophy and objectives of a liberal arts education for the 1970's and beyond, and, in addition, the implementation of their conclusions.

Frequent discussions were held involving all students and faculty, including two separate days which were set aside for this purpose. The final report of the committee was submitted to the campus community last September.

Dean Norris, who was chairman of the Task Force until his appointment as acting dean, explained that many elements of the new Juniata plan have been found beneficial at other colleges and universities. The program brings these elements together in a way which the dean believes will be of unique value to future Juniata students.

Undergraduates preparing an individual course of study, Dean Norris said, must now identify the area in which they propose to work and they must describe in writing how their study fits into a coherent program. Each student's plan for his own particular pattern of study must be presented for approval in the spring of his first year in college.

The freshman year, the dean continued, is the most innovative aspect of the Juniata curriculum. In the first two terms the student is required to take a course named "Modes of Thought and Inquiry", a writing program designed to insure his ability to communicate clearly, and an introductory seminar with a faculty member.

The introductory seminar is intended to increase contact between faculty and students and to provide the foundation for a continuing counseling relationship, according to the dean. "The content of the seminar," Norris added, "may be anything the professor and the students agree to study and can be situated in the library, a laboratory or the living room of a professor's home."

Thirty-four units of study will be required for graduation in place of the present 120 credit hours. During each term the student will normally pursue three units of academic work which may be enriched with field-trips, off-campus study and newly developed courses.

Faculty members are currently engaged in developing their course offerings to fulfill the objectives of the new program.

The Task Force committee consisted of Mrs. Elizabeth E. Cherry, assistant professor of humanities, chairman; Mrs. Sara H. Clemson, assistant professor of education and chairman of the social science division; Donald T. Hartman, assistant professor of philosophy; Thomas J. Nolan, associate professor of economics; Dr. Wilfred G. Norris, professor of physics and acting dean of academic affairs; and Dr. William E. Russey, associate professor of chemistry.

Student members were Karl K. Kinding, a sophomore from Clearfield and holder of the Simpson Scholarship, and Michael H. Long, a senior from Roaring Spring, Pa.

Others who assisted during part of the committee's work were Dr. Esther M. Doyle, professor of English, the Rev. Robert E. Faus, former minister to students and Miss Donna Roppelt, a senior from Abington, Pa.

Students, shown here talking with President Stauffer, played an important role in the work of the Task Force.

Hagerstown, Md. Mr. Beachley, Sr. is chairman of the committee on finance and investments of the Juniata Board of Trustees.

The alumni are urged to submit nominations. They may also be submitted by full-time students, faculty, administrators and trustees.

Each nomination must be presented in writing to the Dean of Academic Affairs and must be accompanied by a signed supporting statement based upon the criteria given in the following paragraphs.

1. Years of service to the College.

2. Contributions to the development of his particular department and to the College as a whole, including participation in worthy student activities.

3. Effectiveness as a teacher; to be evaluated on the basis of: a) comprehensive knowledge of his field; b) organization and presentation of subject matter; c) stimulation of thinking and development of understanding; d) arousal of interest; e) demonstration of resourcefulness.

4. Scholarly activities; contributions to research or to professional literature in his field, or equivalent; participation in professional organizations or groups.

5. Service beyond the immediate campus community (to community organizations, church, local school board, etc.)

6. Other points of strength which the nominator desires to present.

Individuals need not excel in all of these criteria to be acceptable nominees. Some will stand out in a particular area; others may be less spectacular, but "sound" in many of the areas named. It will be the task of the nominator to present his candidate in as convincing manner as possible.

ANNUAL SUPPORT FUND

Giving reaches half-way mark

Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Caulton '29, co-chairmen of the 1970-71 Annual Support Fund Campaign, announced recently that the Fund had passed the half-way mark and that gifts to date total more than $62,500.

This year's campaign goal of $125,000 is a 25 percent increase over the 1969-70 goal, reflecting the need for additional revenue in light of higher operating costs.

Juniata's deficit, in the last academic year, amounted to $42,795 for current operations. A detailed report of 1969-70 revenue and expenditures appeared in the "President's Report", mailed in October. The Annual Support Fund is designed to aid in bridging the gap between actual income and the College's operating budget of $4,100,000.

Under the Caulton's leadership the ASF Committee, comprising 65 class fund agents, will be contacting alumni, parents and other friends of Juniata. Last year the alumni contributed a total of $251,000 to the College.

Noting the significance of alumni support, Mr. Caulton emphasized that continued annual participation is the key to a successful program. He urged that, in order to achieve the established dollar goal and donor goal of 2500, we need the support of last year's contributors as well as 300 additional new donors. "It is only through continued growth by participation that we can insure the success of the Annual Support Program," the Caultons said.

Sources of support for the Annual Support Fund are alumni, parents, the Church of the Brethren, other friends, and corporate and foundation gifts. The drive will conclude with the end of the fiscal year, June 30, 1971.

CAGERS ROUND OUT SUCCESSFUL SEASON

"Four Horsemen" will bow out next month

by Robin Blakeslee

Four "horsemen" who came on the Juniata scene just four years ago will ride off into the sunset as alumni this spring, having left their mark on the basketball record books.

Their tale may be less than apocalyptic, but certainly no less than sensational has been the contribution of seniors John Smith, Charley Harvey, Jim McCarthy and Leroy Wentz as the nucleus of Juniata's basketball teams from 1967 through 1971.

All are from the Harrisburg area, where they played basketball on rival high school teams. The four have contributed in excess of 4,000 of the more than 6,000 points the Indians have accumulated in the last four seasons. The past three consecutive winning seasons capped a full decade of hard-wood losses.

Under new head coach Jack Swinderman this year the Indians adopted "balance" as the word to describe their offensive plan.

Nowhere was that plan more important than on the weekend of January 29 and 30 at Scranton and Wilkes-Barre, where the Tribe performed their best as a team. Although they lost to Scranton by one point, 84-83, the Indians went into the game with a winning attitude and came out of it convinced they had won a moral victory.

Brilliant defensive play by McCarthy and Wentz prevented Scranton All-American forward Gene Mumford from scoring heavily, while co-captains Smith and Harvey enlisted the aid of sophomore Tom Rinaldi in the scoring department for Juniata. It was a close, hard-fought game which the Indians truly felt they should have won.

The following evening in Wilkes-Barre, the Tribe's winning attitude brought them out from under an 11-point halftime deficit to tie the Colonels at 62 points and take the game into overtime. Then with poise and teamwork the Indians outscored the home team 13 to 8 and returned to College Hill with a 75-70 victory.

Four of Juniata's five starters wound up with double figures in scoring in that game, and three were also in the teens in rebounds. For the two weekend games, the Indian "regulars" were responsible for 133 points and 77 rebounds, which average out to better than 13 points and 8 rebounds per man per game—a respectable "balanced" performance in any league.

John Smith continued to be ranked among the nation's top small college scorers (NCAA) at mid-season, averaging better than 24 points per game.

Confident that his men on the bench will profit by examples both of a winning attitude and well developed skills this year, Coach Swinderman has few worries about what will happen next season when he loses the four seniors. But he is grateful to have their stellar efforts this year.

Season results were as follows:

LOOKING AHEAD TO SPRING SPORTS

Tennis Coach Ernie Post has announced plans for Juniata's 1971 southern spring tour, which will give his racquetiers six exhibition matches in which to sharpen their skills for the regular season.

From March 22 to 27 the netmen will go to courts at Guilford, Elon and Pfeiffer Colleges in North Carolina, Virginia Polytech and Emory & Henry Colleges in Virginia, and West State College.

After a short vacation they will open their regular 10-meet season April 5 at home against Indiana. Last year Juniata's tennis team posted its seventh consecutive winning season with a 6-3 record.

Coach Bill Berrier is awaiting good weather to begin baseball practice for his 20-game season which begins April 7 away at Dickinson. The first home game will be a double-header with Kings College on April 10.

Track season will begin at home April 12 against Bucknell. Coach Chick Bunton has been working with a nucleus of 15 returning lettermen since Feb. 15 to get them in shape for the seven dual meets and one triple event on the schedule.
